THE GAZETTE.

THURSDAY EVENING, JANUARY 8.

THE DEAD OF LAST YEAR.

A passing review of the year just closed would be incomplete without a brief reference to the distinguished personages who finished their earthly career during 1873. Let us barely glance at the prominent characters. Among those who died in January, were the ex-emperor of the French, Napoleon III; Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton, the novelist; Hon. and Rev. Baptist W. Noel, who startled the aristocratic religious circles of England in 1849, by leaving the Established for the Baptist church, and James Hannary, the English novelist. In February there died ex-Governor Geary, of Pennsylvania, and Caroline Cheesboro, a very pleasant American authoress. Bishop McIlwaine died in March. The necrology of April includes W. C. Macready, the actor, and Justus Von Liebig, the world renowned chemist. In May there died W. H. McGuffey, the educator; Chief Justice Chase; Oakes Ames of credit mobilier notoriety; John Stuart Mill, the economist and radical thinker, and Joel Parker, S. D. D., a prominent clergyman, of New York. No prominent names are included among those who passed away in June, except we should single out Hiram Powers, the sculp-tor, and Jesse R. Grant, the President's father. July witnessed the departure from earth of Samuel Wilberforce, bishop of Winchester, who was killed by a fall from his horse. In August three distinguished American clergymen, two of them quite aged, departed from their earthly labors: R. S. Storrs, D. D., of Braintree, Massachusetts, and Gardiner Spring. D. D., of New York, both of whom had been pastors over their respective churches more than sixty years; Rev. John Todd, D. D., of Pittsfield, Massachusetts, author of the Students' Manual and Index Rerum. No prominent names are to be mentioned for September or October, except, perhaps, Sir Henry Holland, who died in the latter month. The death list of November is very long. It includes Sir William Bovill, chiefjustice of the English court of common pleas; Lewis Gaylord Clark, of Knickerbocker fame; John Early, senior-bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, South; Laura Keene, the actress, whose playing President Lincoln was witnessing on the evening of his assassination; General W. J. Hardee, of tactic and Confederate fame; ex-Senator John P. Hale; James H. Lucas, the richest man in St. Louis; Mrs. R. E Lee, and ex-Senator and Governor Richard Yates, of Illinois. During the closing month of the year there died Bishop Armitage; Louis Aggassiz, who was soon followed by his daughter-in-law, who had worn herself out in ministering by his sick-bed; Samuel Nelson, ex-justice of the supreme court of the United States; Johns Hopkins, the Baltimore million aire and philanthropist, and Frederick Dent, father-in-law of President Grant.
